NJ Kinship Connections Welcomes You!

The New Jersey Kinship Legal Guardianship Resource Clearing House (KinKonnnect) welcomes readers to the first edition of our newsletter, NJ Kinship Connections. The goal of KinKonnnect is to address the growing need for information and resource services for those families who have obtained kinship legal guardianship (KLG) of children currently in their care or being placed permanently in their homes. NJ Kinship Connections is one way that KinKonnnect will share knowledge among the kinship care community.

The NJ Kinship Legal Guardianship Resource Clearing House (KinKonnnect) is a program of Children's Aid and Family Services, grant funded by the State of New Jersey's Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS). This new information and resource center offers services free of charge to families formed through kinship legal guardianship.

KinKonnnect is committed to providing the following services to individuals, families, and kinship care parent support groups in an effort to preserve families formed through kinship care:

- We are publishing this newsletter in an effort to provide the most up-to-date information on kinship care

Find Strength in Social Support

On the fourth Friday of every month grandparents gather at the South Orange library eager to meet others, who like them, have been raising their grandchildren as kinship caregivers. They eagerly receive information, support and advocacy from the Grandma K.A.R.E.S support group. Louise Eagle, a kinship caregiver herself, has been leading and coordinating the group meetings in an effort to share the support services available to grandparents and other relative caregivers. Support groups are a proven method for caregivers to gain strength, confidence and an appropriate outlet to share their day to

Permanency Planning: Adoption vs. KLG

THE 2000 U.S. CENSUS REVEALED 1 IN 12 CHILDREN LIVES IN A HOUSEHOLD THAT IS HEADED BY GRANDPARENTS, OR OTHER RELATIVES, AND THIS NUMBER HAS GROWN IN RECENT YEARS.

The 2000 U.S. Census revealed 1 in 12 children lives in a household that is headed by grandparents, or other relatives, and this number has grown in recent years. As aunts, uncles, grandparents and family friends open their hearts and homes to a relative's child, they often begin to explore the permanency options for that child. While most are familiar with the conditions of adoption, far less are sufficiently informed of kinship legal guardianship (KLG), and nearly all have questions as to the difference between the two. The Association for Children of New Jersey (ACNJ) has designed a side-by-side comparison chart to assist family members to better understand the legal and financial differences between adoption and KLG (DYFS and non-DYFS) so they can make the best choice for their family when deciding on a permanency plan for the child. Below you will find a portion of the Adoption vs. Kinship Legal Guardianship chart. The complete ACNJ chart is available to download free of charge at www.kinkconnect.org, or you may request a free copy by contacting a KinConnect warm-line representative at 877-KLG-LINE (877-554-5463) or warm-line@kinkconnect.org.

Those families who achieve kinship legal guardianship through DYFS may be eligible for FREE in-home counseling. To locate a provider near you, check out www.kinkconnect.org or contact the warm-line at 1-877-KLG-LINE (1-877-554-5463)

	Adoption	Kinship Legal Guardianship (KLG)
Legal authority over child	The adoptive parent's legal authority over the child is the same as if the parent had given birth to the child. Adoption judgment is final.	The kinship legal guardian (KLG) has almost the same decision-making authority over the child as a parent until the child turns 18 or judgment is changed. The parent can seek return of custody at a later date. If the KG wants to adopt the child after KLG judgment is entered (or after the DYFS case is closed) s/he must file a private adoption complaint.
Contact between child and birth parents	As the legal parent, an adoptive parent can choose to maintain contact between the child and the birth parent, but the birth parent has no enforceable right to contact with the child. The birth parent may register with the Adoption Registry and can contribute to the child's Life Book.	Parent retains right of visitation through court order, although court may limit or restrict visitation if contact with the birth parent is harmful to the child. Parties work out logistics. In DYFS cases, once a KLG judgment is entered, DYFS no longer assists with arranging visits.
Subsidy payments	Subsidy is paid if the child is determined to be a "special needs" child, and generally at the board rate at the time the adoption is finalized. For children with extreme needs, the subsidy can exceed the board rate and can be renegotiated if the child's needs change. Subsidy can be reduced by amount of child's SSI payment and stops at age 18 or when child graduates high school, whichever occurs later.	The subsidy amount is established when the final KLG judgment is granted and cannot be renegotiated. The subsidy can be reduced by amount of child's SSI payment, and stops at age 18 or when child graduates high school, whichever occurs later.

day challenges and success stories.

Support groups for kinship caregivers are meeting throughout New Jersey more often than you may imagine. To find a group near you, or obtain a complete NJ listing, please contact the KinKonnnect warm-line toll-free at 877-KLG-LINE or visit the website at www.kinkonnnect.org.

With the power of the internet, support is now available 24/7 with many online forums, blogs and websites offering information and personal experiences.

Many caregivers also find support in books, articles and fact sheets outlining available resources, parenting techniques or professional advice on dealing with difficult family situations. KinKonnnect has a wealth of literature available through our free lending library. Speak to or email a warm-line representative to make your request.

Workshops and conferences designed for the relative caregiver are available throughout New Jersey and nationwide. Check out the calendar of events posted on the KinKonnnect website to find out more or invite us to your local support group and we will facilitate one of our no-cost professional workshops. Newest to the KinKonnnect workshop library is "Telling your Child Difficult History."
