Tips for Grandparents Raising Grandchildren

When parents are absent or unable to raise their children, grandparents are often the ones who step in. Raising a second generation brings many rewards, including the fulfillment of giving your grandkids a sense of security, developing a deeper relationship, and keeping the family together. It also comes with many challenges. No matter how much you love your grandkids, taking them into your home requires major adjustments. But with the right guidelines and support, you can make a real difference in the lives of your grandchildren.

“kinship care,” a growing number of grandparents are now taking on the parenting role for their grandchildren, thus foregoing the traditional grandparent/grandchild relationship. This often means giving up your leisure time, the option of traveling, and many other aspects of your independence. Instead, you once again take on responsibility for the day-to-day maintenance of a home, schedules, meals, homework, and play dates. And if it was tragic circumstances that required you to step into the role of parent, you’ll face many other stress factors, such as coping with your own and your grandchildren’s grief.

But raising your grandchildren, while challenging, can also be incredibly rewarding. Yes, you may have to deal with colicky babies or moody teenagers, but you’ll also experience a much greater connection to your grandchild’s world, including their school and leisure activities. You may also find yourself rolling back the years, rejuvenated by the constant companionship of much younger people. And you can derive immense satisfaction from providing your grandchildren with a safe, nurturing, and structured home environment in which to grow and feel loved. The prospect of raising grandchildren is bound to trigger a range of emotions. The following are some tips that may be helpful: 1 - Acknowledge your feelings about parenting again; the good and the bad. 2 - Take care of yourself. A healthy you means healthy grandchildren.

If you don't take care of your health, you won't be able to take care of your grandchildren.

Make it a priority to eat nutritious meals, exercise regularly, and get adequate sleep. Don't let doctor's appointments or medication refills slide.

3 -Support makes all the difference. Talk to a friend, connect with a grandparent support group, reach out to community for child care help, and connect with other parents raising children. 4- Through it all, your grandchildren have mixed feelings too. When children are dealing with the loss of regular contact with their parent or parents, the move is even harder. It will take some time for your grandchildren to adjust, and in the meantime, they may act especially contrary and difficult. If the children have suffered from emotional neglect, trauma, or abuse, those wounds will not disappear just because they are now in a safe place. They will need time to heal. 5 - Your grandkids may resent being separated from their parent and wish to return, even if their home situation was dangerous or abusive. Don't take this personally. The parent-child bond is powerful. Even if the children are old enough to understand that they're better off with you, they will still miss their parent and struggle with feelings of abandonment. Your grandkids' feelings may come out in many ways, including behavior, and no matter what, they need comfort and support. 6 - Focus on a stable environment; children thrive on predictability, including routines and age appropriate house rules. 7- Offer your time and attention and keep an open line of communication. Kinship Navigator Programs:

Dial 2-1-1

By dialing 2-1-1, eligible Kinship caregivers can get help addressing immediate problems, and they will also be referred to a local New Jersey Kinship agency which will work with caregivers to access additional services.

The local kinship agencies serve three functions. First, staff from the agencies help caregivers "navigate" other forms of government assistance. Secondly, Kinship agencies determine if the caregiver's family is eligible for Kinship Navigator program benefits and help with short-term expenses for the relative child, such as furniture, moving expenses, and clothing. Finally, the Kinship agencies provide technical support and guide the family through the process of Kinship Legal Guardianship if the caregiver wishes to make a legal commitment to the child.

Our Library “Kin” Korner, Book Review

Welcome readers!

According to Grandfacts from Grandfamilies.org, over 49,000 grandparents are raising their grandchildren in New Jersey.

In Elaine K. William’s book, The Sacred Work of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren, the challenges faced by these grandparents are explored. The generation gap between grandchildren and grandparent is tremendous, especially in our technologically advanced society. Elaine K. Williams stated, “We need to remember that we knew a different world; our grandchildren did not.” Acknowledging the differences and realizing that neither world is better or worse is important. Ms. Williams helps her readers to embrace the changes and learn to evolve in the world of today. This book also examines the different developmental stages of children and how grandparents can match expectations with their grandchildren’s abilities. This includes a better understanding of the adolescent brain. Loss and trauma are very much a part of the equation when grandparents are parenting their children’s children. The absence of a parent is an incredible loss for a child, but there is also a loss for the grandparent, who is now giving up the role of “grandparent” to become a parent once again. Ms. William’s book helps grandparents take on all the challenges of parenting again with optimism and understanding. She reminds her reader to “be intentional about your life. When your grandkids are grown, they will reflect back and say, ‘My success as a person was birthed in my grandparents’ positive, hopeful, and confident attitude toward life, despite their many challenges.’”

I Call My Grandparents “Mom and Dad” by Carilyn Rouyer is a children’s book written from the perspective of Kayden, a young boy being raised by his grandparents. In his words, he explains that his mom and dad are really his grandparents. Although they look older, they still do all the things that moms and dads do. He matter-of-factly explains that lots of kids are being raised by their grandparents and details some of the reasons why. He concludes by stating, “My parents are just like any other mom and dad except with laugh lines on their face and snow in their hair.”

Our Grandfamily: A Flip-Sided Book About Grandchildren Being Raised By Grandparents by Sandra Werle, M.Ed. is a wonderful children’s book that explores the daily life and emotions of grandchildren being raised by their grandparents. Flip the book over and the story is told from the grandparents’ perspective. This book helps the reader to normalize the concerns and thoughts of both grandparents and grandchildren and to put labels to all their feelings. The chapters end by stating, “Sometimes it’s hard to be a skip-generation. Mostly it’s just fine- because we love each other. This is our normal.”

Cost-of-Living Adjustments (COLA) Update for 2018

Monthly Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits for more than 66 million Americans increased by 2.0 percent in 2018.

Starting in January 2018, a 2.0 percent cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) began with benefits payable to more than 61 million Social Security beneficiaries as well as over 8 million beneficiaries who receive SSI benefits. Some of the same people receive both Social Security and SSI benefits.

The maximum amount of earnings subject to the Social Security tax (taxable maximum) was increased from $127,200 to $128,400 in 2018.

The earnings limit for workers who are younger than "full" retirement age (age 66 for people born in 1943 through 1954) increased to $17,040. (Social Security deducts $1 from benefits for each $2 earned over $17,040.)

The earnings limit for people turning 66 in 2018 increased to $45,360. (Social Security deducts $1 from benefits for each $3 earned over $45,360 until the month the worker turns age 66.) There is no limit on earnings for workers who are "full" retirement age or older for the entire year.

For more information on the Cost of Living Increase, please visit: <https://www.ssa.gov/news/cola/> and <https://www.ssa.gov/oact/COLA/cbb.html>.

NJ Connect for Recovery Call Line

Have a loved one who is involved with drugs? Need some help or guidance?

Consider contacting the NJ Connect for Recovery Call Line. This line was established to support two distinct groups across the state of New Jersey: those concerned with their own opiate use; and those who are experiencing distress related to the opiate use of a friend or family member.

This service is a safe, confidential, nonjudgmental forum for people to connect, grow and transform through a unique combination of supportive counseling from certified alcohol and drug counselors and peer specialists. They also offer support groups around the state.

For more information, please give them a call at 855-652-3737 and/or visit their website at www.njconnectforrecovery.org/.
